

Tuesday Teacher Training

Creating Inviting Schools and Classrooms

Resources

Online Resources

The International Alliance for Invitational Education

Information and other valuable resources pertinent to invitational education may be accessed from the home page which is accessible at this link:

<http://www.invitationaleducation.net/>

What is Invitational Education?

A brief description of invitational and the basic assumptions of invitational education are provided in this document.

<http://www.invitationaleducation.net/ie/ie.htm>

Creating Safe Schools with Invitational Education

A brief overview of invitational education is offered in this summary.

<http://chiron.valdosta.edu/whuitt/files/createsafeschools.html>

"Invitational Education: A Model for Teachers and Guidance Counselors"

Access this document to read about the characteristics of an inviting teacher or counselor.

<http://www.tri-association.org/webletter/story02.html>

"Effective Teaching"

Rosemary and Harry Wong, long recognized as leaders in classroom management and creating caring environments for learning. Their column, "A Journey of the Heart," is especially poignant. This column, along with other columns and articles authored by this duo may be found at the URL below:

<http://teachers.net/gazette/FEB01/wong.html>

This message from the principal at Shady Spring Elementary, Baltimore County Public Schools indicates a real commitment to inviting all students to learn.

<http://www.bcpl.net/~knierwie/invitation.html>

Do you teach in a virtual environment? This paper explains how invitational education may be effectively employed in an online learning environment.

<http://www.caudit.edu.au/educauseaustralasia/2003/EDUCAUSE/PDF/AUTHOR/ED030087.PDF>

How can a school become more inviting? Examine the results of a survey, conducted at Lai King Catholic Secondary School to assess the school's invitational practices in 2004. What they learned may be applied at any secondary school to improve the climate for learning.

<http://www.lkcss.edu.hk/IE/Survey.pdf>